Status of the claims

1. Claims 1-10, 27-36, 41, and 43 are pending with the Response (8/15/2006).

Response

2. The examiner respectfully submits that because claimed “pointer” is an essential subject matter of this invention – representing by software instructions, therefore pending claims 1-10, 27-36, 41, and 43 contain subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that to duplicate this invention without trial and error.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

3. Claims 1-10, 27-36, 41, and 43 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. These claims contain subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that to duplicate this invention without trial and error.

Claims 1-10, 27-36, 41, and 43 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because: they are essentially directed to a software imbedded in a computer-readable media and using in a system – even pending claims are directed to “system” because incorporating that specific software (a MUST) can be considered as a brain of this invention (while the submitted specification provides nothing to enable one with ordinary skill in the art to practice – non enablement); and the specification does not reasonably provide enablement of a claimed software for use in a claimed system. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to practice the invention commensurate in scope with these claims (the dependent claims of above independent claims are also rejected on 35 USC 112, 1st para. because they include above defective). The applicant only provides a very high level drawing (i.e., Fig. 5), not the essential codes and instructions – the subject matter of this invention - to make this invention.
